

Hello boys or girls, I'm Rebeka Hevesi, your would-be guide. Everybody calls me Rebeka (female name;)), but if you guess a more fascinating nickname just go ahead..

I was born on the 1st of January 1989, so I'm 19 years old. I came from Békéscsaba which is medium-sized city in the south-eastern part of Hungary, but currently I'm living in Budapest and studying there at the University Corvinus. I'm specialized in international relations at the faculty of social science, but it isn't too much appealing for me, so that I'm planning to join a new course from next year at the University of Arts. My hobbies are arts especially literature, on the fields of which I try to broaden my knowledge. It's not surprising that I like reading mainly classic or sci-fi novels, dramas and poets, but critics and other publications aren't either far cry from me. I'm interested in drama history and theatre. I often go to the theatre (mainly because my aunt is an actress) and the cinema. Besides that I also take pleasure in listening to music in many styles. My favorite one is psychedelic electric rock, but I also like indie, grunge and garage rock, heavy or nu metal, world, electric, classical music and trip-hop. In my free time I play flute or sing. I do gyms once or twice a week. I am not great adept in chemistry, but my father studied in a chemic school and I also used to like this subject when I was at school.

I am quite fluent not only in English but also in French, both of which I speak and write on an advanced level. I also study Spanish... The language we'll talk to each other is French, which is my favorite one. I really hope that we'll understand each other easily, but for safety sake I buy a French slang dictionary ☺

I hope that you'll enjoy your staying, I'll manage to introduce you an interesting face of Hungary and cater for your needs. I'm really looking forward to your visit in Budapest. Until that good preparation for the competition!

Rebeka Hevesi
