

Hi everyone! My name is Márton, but you can call me Marty or Yesi, which proceeds from my last name (Jeszenszky). I come from a middle-sized Hungarian city, but actually I live in Budapest, where I study. It's a cool place to live and I have the luck to share a flat with my two best friends so we never get bored here. As for me, I'm an open-minded guy with defects as well, but I'm quite a sociable type, so I love traveling, getting to know other people or learn about the habits and life of foreigners. I think the most important is being able to take your life with humor. I study at the Spanish faculty of Eötvös Loránd Science University and I take Hungarian grammar and literature classes as well. I'm interested in arts, I like reading and watching interesting films that have deep meanings. In my future plans I can imagine myself as an interpreter or a teacher, but I have a lot of aspirations. Actually I'm working for a big travel agency here in Budapest informing tourists about the sightseeing tours and recommending them good places to eat out or entertain. Besides Spanish I speak English and German quite well. As for my scientific interests, well, I'm not that chemistry-fanatic type, but I have never had problems with it in the secondary school, so I hope it won't cause problems now either. ☺ Anyway, I'm looking forward to seeing each other and I'm sure we will have a really good time.

Márton Jeszenszky
