

I'm Agnes, a third year student at ELTE majoring in English and Scandinavian Studies. I've lived in Sweden extensively, which helps my Danish studies a lot, despite the difference between the two languages. I enjoy languages in general, and am working towards a translator's degree in various languages, particularly English, Swedish and Danish. I also study Japanese in my spare time. I have spent far too little time in Denmark so far (not counting Lego land), but I intend to attend a folkehøjskole soon. In the mean time, I will be working on my vocabulary and my pronunciation of "rødgrød med fløde".
