

My name is Eva Nagy, I am 25 years old. I live in Budapest.

I graduated in 2007 at the Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest, at the Faculty of Philology. My majors were Russian and German Literature and Language. Now I am a PhD student, dealing with 19th century Russian literature. In my dissertation I focus on “The Possessed” of Dostoevsky.

This summer I graduate in the field of International Communication at the Budapest Business School at the Faculty of Foreign Trade. I am also teaching Russian language. I am interested not only in literature, but also in culture and history of Russia and the countries in the neighborhood of Russia. I speak Russian and German very well, a little bit English, and I am learning Latvian and Bulgarian.

In my free time I like to be with friends and go out to the cinema, theatre and exhibitions with them, or to sit in cafes and get to know new people.

Last summer I worked as a guide for the International Dostoevsky Conference and for the Austrian-Hungarian Summer School. I am waiting for you!
