

Hi! My name is Ágnes, but my friends call me Ági. I'm from the North of Hungary; I live in a small village near the capital Budapest. Currently I'm attending the English linguistics and literature major of Eötvös Loránd University Budapest, this is my 4th year. I also go to an art school on Saturdays where I learn to paint and draw; art is one of my hobbies, I sit in the streets of Budapest and draw the old buildings whenever I have the time. I'm also fond of sports, running and Callanetics are my favourites. I have pets too: 3 dogs, a cat, and 2 laughing pigeons, they are a lot of trouble, but I love them to no end. Summer is my favourite season; when I have free time I go swimming somewhere or out with my friends for a coffee or chocolate to one of the many coffeehouses- it's a real tradition in Hungary- or to dance to one of the pubs or clubs. When I'm at home I take long walks in the hills around the house for relaxation.

I have been teaching English since I was 16, and although my education will give me qualification to teach officially, I'm very much into travelling so I plan to take an extra course to become a tourist guide. My dream destination is Greece. I like helping people, and my students say I'm patient, and my friends say I'm sociable. I'm looking forward to being a guide on the Chemistry Olympiad because I like meeting new people, especially from a different culture; I have several friends outside of Hungary. Moreover, it also gives me a chance to try my skills as a guide, and gain experience for the future.
